

Prego Terraces.

 Mabushi, Abuja

The treatment of the facades is homogeneous according to the orientation and the different levels, without a hierarchy of orientation.

The facade is projected to create generous outdoor spaces on top of each tier, providing balconies for a two-thirds of the apartments, as well as a cantilevered entrance for each of the terraces on the ground floor.

The body of the building does not vary in the floors for the sake of uniformity and creating generous internal living spaces. It is the terraces that change from one level to another: sometimes wide, sometimes deep, they „blur“ the limits of the building. A groundbreaking feature in the design process was the involvement of the residents in the planning and development phases of the project.
